

How Social Foundations of Education Matters to Teacher Preparation: A Policy Brief

Educational Studies, 38(3)

Dan W. Butin, Guest Editor

Table of Contents

- Martusewicz, R. (2005). Editor's Corner. Educational Studies, 38(3), 211-213.
- Butin, D. (2005). Guest Editor' Introduction: How Social Foundations of Education Matters to Teacher Preparation: A Policy Brief. Educational Studies, 38(3), 214-229.
- Bredo, E. (2005). Addressing the Social Foundations "Accountability" Dilemma. Educational Studies, 38(3), 230-241.
- Dottin, E., Jones, A., Simpson, D., & Watras, J. (2005). Representing the Social Foundations of Education in NCATE: A Chronicle of Twenty-Five Years of Effort. Educational Studies, 38(3), 241-254
- Harris, I. (2005). Growing Foundations Through Community Education. Educational Studies, 38(3), 254-263.
- Cross, B. (2005). New Racism, Reformed Teacher Education, and the Same Ole' Oppression. Educational Studies, 38(3), 263-274.
- Garmon, M. (2005). Six Key Factors for Changing Preservice Teachers' Attitudes/Beliefs about Diversity. Educational Studies, 38(3), 275-286.
- Butin, D. (2005). Is Anyone Listening? Educational Policy Perspectives on the Social Foundations of Education. Educational Studies, 38(3), 286-297.
- Abbate-Vaughn, J. (2005). BOOK REVIEW of Walking the Road: Race, Diversity, and Social Justice in Teacher Education. Educational Studies, 38(3), 298-302.
- Provenzo Jr., E. (2005). TIME EXPOSURE. Educational Studies, 38(3), 303-304.

Accepted articles that were published in Educational Studies 39(2):

- McCarthy, M. R. (2006). The Rise and Fall of ED200F. Educational Studies, 39(2), 134-145.
- Mueller, J. (2006). Does Talking the Talk Mean Walking the Walk? A Case for Forging Closer Relations Between Teacher Education and Educational Foundations. Educational Studies, 39(2), 146-162.